New York Stock Exchange-listed Hill International — which is providing project management for the Grand Egyptian Museum — has been awarded the contract to provide facilities management (FM) consultancy services to act as the managing agent for the Tatweer Building Company (TBC), which represents the Saudi Ministry of Education.

The award consists of three main projects: two headquarters' buildings in Riyadh, Riyadh Schools and associated administrative buildings, which consist of more than 2,000 facilities, and Eastern Province schools plus administrative buildings totaling another 2,000 facilities.

Hill International's project staff will mobilise to deliver each of the above projects to international facilities management standards and practices.

The current portfolio has more than 6,000 sites and TBC is scaling up their operations to accommodate the complete portfolio as part of the Ministry of Education's goal of transforming the current educational system.

Commenting on the contract, Hill International's director of facilities management, Brian Murphy, said: "As education is important to all of us, we are very pleased with this great opportunity to enable us to showcase our FM skills and raise the bar in the delivery standards within the region by applying our best international practices."

On his part, Hill International's chief executive officer, Raouf Ghali said: "This is an important win for Hill International as these projects come with a great cause and will have a significant impact in the region. I am confident that Hill's FM team will bring its most skillful resources and talents."
