SWAMPSCOTT, MA —

The school is being designed to achieve LEED Silver certification, as well as to exceed current building energy efficiency requirements. The new school is scheduled to open in time for start of the 2024 academic year.

"Our team helped the public understand the need for this new school as well as to generate excitement for the project," said

Peter Martini

, Hill First Vice President, New England. "Now, we're looking to build on that excitement and deliver a new Hadley Elementary that Swampscott will be proud of for years to come."

"As America reinvests in its public facilities and infrastructure, Hill is ready to continue our decades-long relationship with municipalities like Swampscott in making certain they realize their projects as efficiently and cost-effectively as possible," said Hill CEO

Raouf Ghali.
