

Rebuilding Communities, Delivering Results

By Andy Robinson, PMP, Vice President, Resiliency and Disaster Recovery, Hill International, Inc.

As both natural and man-made disasters across the U.S. increase in frequency and intensity, public agencies are often called upon to conceptualize, manage and control recovery projects and programs. However, these agencies, understandably, may lack the in-house skill sets and experience necessary to realize the goals of their programs within cost and schedule parameters, increasing the risk of poor outcomes and delays to restoring—and protecting—impacted communities.

Hill International, Inc., helps our recovery clients restore their communities while maintaining transparency and accountability.

We bring industry-recognized best practices and new technologies to achieve strong recovery project launches, control and monitor costs, and keep all stakeholders engaged and informed. ♦

Andy Robinson has more than 30 years of experience in strategic consulting, program management, and solutions development. He served in leadership roles for the Road Home Program following Hurricane Katrina, the New Jersey Housing Program following Superstorm Sandy, and the U.S. Virgin Islands STEP program following Hurricanes Irma and Maria.
